INTRODUCTION.

IN commemoration of the greatest and most important Exhibition ever held within the shores of Great Britain, the Great Western Railway Company ask acceptance of this short Souvenir which, it is hoped, will be of interest to visitors to London, and particularly those coming from Overseas who may not be fully acquainted with the old country and its transport facilities.

The Great Western Railway serves the most beautiful holiday country in England and Wales, also many of the most important industrial areas, and its steamship services between Fishguard and Rosslare and between Weymouth and the Channel Islands promote excellent facilities for passenger and goods traffic. It is the aim of the Company to cater equally for the business community and the seeker after health and pleasure.

The country through which the Great Western Railway passes is such as to make its own appeal, but if the following pages serve to awaken the interest of anyone who has not yet made use of the system, either for business or pleasure, the purpose of this little book will have been fulfilled.
